

I have a dream that everybody will not use gas cars. If people keep using gas cars, there will be more gas in Earth. The gas will trap the heat from the Sun. The heat melts ice in the north and south pole.

Did you know that the north and south pole are already melting? Scientists say that if the north and south pole are completely melted, there will be about 25 ft. of water on top of land.

There are still some ways to stop the heat. If you are a child, you can ride your bike or go on the subway to get to school. If you are a grown-up, you can use a bike to get to your job. If your job is very far you can use the subway. If you're on vacation, you can use an airplane.

These are some ways you can travel instead of using gas cars or buying electricity cars. Together, we can stop global warming.
